ABOUT MARY NYHAN

Mary Nyhan is the principal of Nyhan Tax Advisers. She formed the practice in early 2013. Mary specialises in advising clients on the tax aspects of property and M&A activity. Mary has over 23 years of expertise in advising on VAT on property and on succession of family businesses (two key areas of indirect taxes) and this work has led to the current award.

Mary is keenly interested in advising business owners and executives on their taxation strategies. Mary has experience in advising on a wide range of corporate restructurings, sales, management buy-outs, expansions, IPOs and privatisations. She is a practical project leader and co-ordinator who works beside companies and business owners in achieving their business objectives. Mary also works closely with banks, corporate finance houses, receivers and wealth managers on achieving relevant tax objectives.

Separate to her role in Nyhan Tax Advisers, Mary lectures extensively for the Irish Institute of Chartered Accountants. In 2018 alone, she will speak on 3 separate topics: VAT on property, Business Succession and Wealth Management.

Prior to her current role, Mary started her career in the tax practice of Arthur Andersen, was a director in the tax practice of KPMG and also a partner in RSM Farrell Grant Sparks.
